▶ Citysearch Editorial Profile -- By Jake Sussman

Buckhead hideout keeps it simple with cheap food, cold beer and plenty of Golden Tee.

Editorial Rating: Below Average

The Scene

Located on the shabby side of Buckhead, this dive's marquee smartly hawks cheap drink and food specials. Inside, a hodgepodge of beer swag dominates the wood-paneled decor. A big-screen TV shows the game, and a dingy pool table hides in the back. Fittingly, the jukebox stocks classic rock's greatest hits, making this the kind of joint where you swill PBR to BTO.

The Draw

Mr. C's is on the map for two reasons: cheap bar grub and Golden Tee. Three machines line one wall, crowded with Tech kids and scratch video golfers. The menu is big and greasy. A basket of wings is a local favorite; order them "atomic" style. Salty, chunky fries outshine their companion burgers and sandwiches. Like everything else here, the food alone won't bring you back. But if you're looking for an anonymous laid-back night out, this place will do.
